A Tamer's Codex — First Edition

Foreword

On the keeping of Guardians, and the reading of this codex.

Across Aurel — from the lantern-streets of Haven City to the neon Circuit-Crown of Terra, from the drowned vaults of the old empire to the sealed dark of Ghandra — the bond between Tamer and Guardian is the oldest craft there is. This codex gathers every known Guardian: its forms, its elements, the powers it grows into, and the lore the Guilds have set down. Each entry is drawn straight from the living records of the World Circuit.

How to read an entry. Every Guardian is given a card. On the left sits its crest (coloured to its own hide) and a stat profile — HP, SP, Attack, Defence, Speed and Wisdom — with bars measured against the mightiest of their kind, so a glance tells you raw power. On the right: its Form and rank on the nine-step ladder, its elements, its innate Passive, a line of lore, its place in the evolution tree, and its signature techniques (marks a unique art).

A word on power. Damage in Aurel is reckoned as a share of the foe's vitality, never a flat number, so no blow — however vast the attacker — can erase a Guardian outright. Two laws shape every duel: the Elemental Lattice (overleaf), and the Form-Block — the hard truth that a lesser form, however brave, simply cannot wound a greater one the way an equal could.

I. The Age of Aurel

Six turnings of the world, as the Chronicle keeps them.

The First Dawn (~3,000 years ago)

The Veil between the world and Ghandra thinned for nine nights, and beings of living element walked out of the light: the first Guardians. They owed humanity nothing. For twenty-three centuries they kept to the deep forests, the sea trenches and the storm peaks, and humans told stories about them the way they told stories about weather.

Aurelia and the First Bond (~700 years ago)

On Agdao Island — a small green knuckle of land in the western sea — a fisher-girl named Aurelia pulled a storm-wounded Guardian from the surf and nursed it through a monsoon. It stayed. The bond between them was the first of its kind: not a leash, but a promise kept both ways. Aurelia's circle of friends learned the way of it, and the island's little region of bonded humans became the first Tamers. The continent of Aurel, the University, half the children in Olivar — all of them carry her name.

The Reaching (~650–400 years ago)

Knowledge of bonding spread from Agdao faster than wisdom did. Humans discovered far more than they should have — how bond could be forced, how element could be drained, how a Guardian's heart could be caged and sold. Whole reaches of the old world built their fortunes on chained Guardians. The era is remembered, with shame, as the Reaching.

The Guild Compact (~400 years ago)

It was Tamers themselves who ended the Reaching. In every town and city where true bonds were kept, Tamers banded into Guilds — houses of training, of law, and when needed, of war — and the Guilds signed one Compact: no bond by force, no Guardian in chains, and every guildhall a sanctuary. Hundreds of Guilds now stand across the four continents, from great houses to three-member village lodges. The five Grand Houses of Olivar are simply the five that history made famous — one chapter in a very thick book.

The Old Empire and its Fall (~300–212 years ago)

An empire of engine-craft rose in Tharkand and drowned in its own ambition. Its war-engines still hum beneath the dunes and its treasures still flood the deep ruins. The Guilds outlasted it, as they have outlasted everything.

The Legion War and the Sealing of Ghandra (15 years ago)

Nine corrupted Guardians — four elements each, generals all — massed their armies in Ghandra, the dimension folded into the center of the world. Three best friends went in: Aljay the Dawnflame, Greggry the Stormheart, and Onnel the Worldroot, nine bonded lights against nine generals. The Legion stayed behind, sealed. The seal weakens a little every year.

II. The Ten Elements

And the lattice of strength and weakness that binds them.

Every Guardian carries one to three elements — the singular beings, four. When an art lands, its element is weighed against each element the defender bears, and the products multiplied; a Guardian of two elements can thus be doubly broken, or doubly safe. The lattice below reads attacker (down the left) against defender (across the top): red is devastation, blue is resistance, a dash is even ground.

	Fire	Water	Nature	Electric	Rock	Ice	Light	Dark	Space	Aether
Fire	×0.5	×0.5	×2	–	×1.25	×2	–	–	–	×0.75
Water	×2	×0.5	×0.5	×0.75	×1.5	–	–	–	–	×0.75
Nature	×0.5	×2	×0.5	×1.25	×1.5	×0.5	–	–	–	×0.75
Electric	–	×2	×0.5	×0.5	×0.25	×1.25	–	–	×1.5	×0.75
Rock	×1.5	×0.5	×0.5	×1.75	×0.75	×1.5	–	–	×1.25	×0.75
Ice	×0.25	×0.75	×2	×1.25	×0.5	×0.5	–	–	×1.5	×0.75
Light	×0.75	–	–	–	×0.75	–	×0.5	×2	×1.5	×1.25
Dark	×0.75	–	×1.25	–	–	–	×2	×0.5	×1.5	×1.25
Space	–	–	–	×1.5	×1.25	×1.5	×0.5	×1.5	×0.5	×0.75
Aether	×1.5	×1.5	×1.5	×1.5	×1.5	×1.5	×1.25	×1.25	×1.5	–

Identities of note. Fire withers Nature and Ice but gutters in Water. Electric is annihilated by the earth — grounded to a quarter against Rock — yet rules the sea and the void. Light and Dark are eternal rivals, each twice as cruel to the other. And Aether, the first element, strikes all of creation hard and shrugs off everything but Light and Dark — which is why only legends and bosses are made of it.

III. The Nine Forms

The ladder of evolution — and the Form-Block that guards it.

Form 0 — Novice

The hatchling state. Lowest stats, lowest reach — but every legend began here.

Form 1 — Adept

The first evolution. Confidence, and the first real techniques.

Form 2 — Elite

Twice-evolved. The backbone of any serious team.

Form 3 — Apex

Thrice-evolved — the natural peak of a wild line, and the gate to the higher mysteries.

Form 4 — Split

The fourth form forks in two: a Guardian chooses one of two destinies. Reached at the Ascension Lab.

Form 5 — Special

Drawn out of a Split form by training and will.

Form 6 — Terra

Re-forged in the world-furnaces of Terra City — requires a Terra Catalyst.

Form 7 — Transcendent

A form that sheds its mortal shape. Requires a Transcendence Sigil and great level.

Form 8 — Aether

The eighth and final evolution — the stuff of the Big Three's Nine. Mostly fought, rarely tamed; an Aether Shard is the only key.

The Form-Block. When a lower form strikes a higher one it is out-classed: the defender shrugs off 5% of the damage for every form it stands above the attacker, to a ceiling of 40% — and this stacks atop the elemental lattice. A Novice may chip an Apex; it cannot fell one. An Aether-born, striking down the ladder, suffers no such penalty: it lands in full. This single law is why the Big Three's Nine are spoken of in the same breath as natural disasters.

IV. The Bestiary

Every lineage of Aurel, house by house — trees, then full entries.

V. The Aether Crown

The Big Three of the World Circuit, and the Nine bonded lights that walked into Ghandra.

Three names stand above the Circuit: Aljay the Dawnflame, Greggy the Stormheart, and Onnel the Worldroot. Between them they hold more titles than the Coliseum has walls to hang them on — and each walked into the sealed dark of Ghandra with three bonded Guardians of the eighth form. These nine Aether-born are the only ones of their kind, and the measuring-stick against which all other power is judged.

Aljay — The Dawnflame

Fire · 8 championships · AE 19–27

Leader of the three, and eight-time World Champion of the Grand Coliseum. Aljay walked into Ghandra carrying nothing but a lantern, with Firgara's blazing sword at his shoulder, Onthrofa folding the road ahead, and Vulfenix lighting the dark behind with trails of rose-fire. Children across all four continents reenact his duel with Nyxghul using broom handles. He has not been seen publicly in years — every tamer claims to know someone who has met him; his wife Airah, Mayor of Haven, only smiles when she is asked where he is. Their daughters Azrin and Azrael carry the family fire forward.

Greggy — The Stormheart

Electric · 9 championships · AE 17–28

Nine-time World Champion — the longest reign in Coliseum history — and the Legion’s armies learned to fear the sound of distant thunder. Greggy grounded the Storm-Tyrant Voltrazar with Voltherion’s coil while Rajjura held the sky and Fulgrath hunted the dark between the armies. He still sends Dax’s Garage handwritten schematics, which Dax frames instead of building.

“Lightning that struck once in the dark of Ghandra and decided to stay.”

A singular form — it evolves from nothing and into nothing.

Techniques: Fulgurant Coil (160) , Voltage Tempest (95), Overload Burst (70), Plasma Blast (65), Storm Lance (62)

Onnel — The Worldroot

Nature · 5 championships · AE 21–25

Five-time World Champion, and the quiet center of the three. When the Legion's rot spread through the greenways, Onnel answered with Verdalune's light, Gaiathorn's patience and Nyxroot's grip. It was Onnel who wove the seal that holds Ghandra shut — every spring, forests across the world bloom a day early in thanks. The Thornward Covenant keeps a chair empty at every feast for them.

The Aether World-Enders

Where a lineage reaches all the way to the eighth form, it does not produce a champion — it produces a calamity. These six are the apex of their elemental houses, fought in the deep trials of the world and tamed by almost no one.

Solmageddon — Blaze, the Aether Fire / Aether / Light

“A walking apocalypse of fire — the death a star chooses when it refuses to fade quietly.”

Maremortis — Tide, the Aether Water / Aether / Ice

“The dead sea given will — a leviathan of drowned starlight that ends worlds by simply rising.”

Worldwither — Verdant, the Aether Nature / Aether / Dark

“The world-tree’s shadow self — it does not grow life, it composts it. Continents go to seed in its wake.”

Dynastorm — Volt, the Aether Electric / Aether / Space

“A god-storm wearing the shape of a bird. To stand beneath it is to be the lightning rod of the world.”

Voidtempest — Gale, the Aether Space / Aether / Dark

“A storm of folded space and dead starlight. Where it passes, the sky forgets which way is down.”

Nihilumbra — Umbra, the Aether Dark / Aether / Space

“The last dark — the one that waits after every star. It does not hunger; it simply ends.”

VI. The Corrupted Legion

Nine generals of Ghandra, sealed but not slain.

Fifteen years ago, the Corrupted Legion — nine four-element Guardians of terrible power — massed their armies in Ghandra, the dimension at the center of the world, and prepared to invade. Three best friends stopped them: Aljay the Dawnflame with Firgara, Onthrofa and Vulfenix; Greggry the Stormheart with Raijura, Voltherion and Fulgrath; and Onnel the Worldroot with Verdalune, Gaiathorn and Nyxroot. Nine Guardians against nine generals. The five Grand Houses of Olivar were founded in the war's aftermath to train the tamers who will stand ready should the seal ever break.

Compiled from the living records of the World Circuit — 255 Guardians across nine forms. “Train them well; they are not weapons, but bonds.”
